

TOWARDS THE NEXT LEVEL OF UNDERSTANDING

Esoteric teachings

Esoteric teachings have been part of the humanity's history since time immemorial. General population has been unaware of the existence of esoteric teachings as they could only be revealed to persons of high level of spiritual development or of high potential for spiritual development.

The developing races of humanity were living here as part of the Cosmic trials to determine what kind of environments and influences could be most conducive for people to realise their divine natures. Races were developing from the level of a near animal man – the lowest level of human level of being – to the point where some members of the collective were becoming spiritually sensitised and ready for esoteric teachings to carry their conscious awareness to the next level of development. Esoteric teachings, by Cosmic Law, have to be employed at this stage as a deliberate input and essential part of person's spiritual education, as people themselves have no ability to discover and properly comprehend Cosmic Knowledge and Cosmic Truths.

Development of consciousness in a human being is a very long process and this is why the process of return (or reincarnation) of the soul should be accepted as a given. For our soul - a spark of consciousness - requires many life times to develop and mature. It is simply not possible for a near animal man to become spiritually ready and understand a high level esoteric knowledge. Only through the esoteric knowledge can a person, who is living in the physical dimension, have her consciousness expanded to comprehend that life on Earth and in the Cosmos (so vast and unlimited, as the best way to think about it is to think of infinity) has many dimensions, and that we can consciously participate in those dimensions. These insights are not available to persons who consciously or unconsciously serve the hedonistic principles in their lives, do not reflect on the life in the Cosmos and think that existence is only what they experience in the physical plane: birth, life and death.

Nature of human consciousness

The mechanism by which the human consciousness manifests in a person is the awareness and understanding of concepts the mind is bringing to the surface from its depths. This mechanism is common to all people. But here is the end of peoples' similarity. The depth or the expanse of a persons mind is what differs in all people. Obviously there must be a difference between the mind of a humanitarian benefactor and the mind of a murderer; between the mind of a farmer and the mind of a highly specialised surgeon; between the mind of a philosopher and the mind of an actor. Due to the lack of contemporary scientific understanding of the nature of our mind we use concepts of the mind's depth or expanse to suggest that mind has a property of extension or a differing in size. We also need to think of mind as having a certain kind of quality and that the extension and quality of every person's mind differs. When we talk about different levels of consciousness development we refer to the size proportion and quality of mind used for the enabling of conscious awareness and facilitating all other mind functions.

In the initial stages of development, human consciousness is interpreted by the mind in a similar way as in primates. However, with the increase of the size of brain in the human beings, mind function also increases. Additionally, as currently accepted by many psychologists and scientists¹, people consciously use only approximately 5% of their brain capacity, which suggests that there is an untapped possibility for a manyfold increase in the mind function and brain activity. And this is a point where we need to consider a possibility of humanly facilitated development of mind and brain function above the five percent of capacity commonly at work.

In our era this furthering of brain capacity can be done using esoteric knowledge. This is the reason why the esoteric knowledge still exists here in the physical dimension. There exist esoteric tools, which can be given to well developed and mature individuals, who would use their increased mental capacity for humanitarian work and not for personal gains. The reason why the esoteric knowledge has to be necessarily hidden is precisely this last condition: that the person would use the newly gained abilities to help humanity as a whole and not for personal advantages.

In the mainstream of humanity the human nature prevails and people (although generally aware what type of behaviour is accepted or condemned by church and society) have little power over their own behaviour. If they find themselves in a situation where they normally should feel jealous – they feel jealousy. The same is with all other major “sins” of humanity; they manifest in every person of society. Only a person, who has a concept of working on his or her psychology and resisting these natural human endowments, is in a position to understand the situation and to actually resist and not allow these adverse feelings to manifest through him or her. And this is the biggest secret of the esoteric science.

The medieval alchemy was misunderstood by the contemporaries as well as by the majority of generations which followed. Thinking generally that the alchemists found an easy method of converting base metals into gold, people wanted to find out about the method so they could get rich. And this is exactly the reason why methods like this had to be kept secret. The positive results of the alchemical quest were close to or amounted to the union with the Divine, and people who were motivated by ordinary pursuits of the riches were not allowed to know the alchemical secrets. These secrets were available only to those gentle souls whose consciousness was elevated to such a degree that greed would not even enter such a person’s mind; these people were the humanity’s benefactors. Another reason for keeping the alchemical quests a secret was the Catholic Church inquisition pursuing anyone who had concepts of Divinity different from the version allowed by the church.

¹ ‘The BRAIN that CHANGES ITSELF’, Norman Doidge, Scribe Publications, 2008.

Experiencing God

Human mind even in its full extent is a very small part of the Cosmic Mind of our Creator. Such spiritual fact should invoke humility in any person who can understand the significance of this statement. Many people who do not understand and do not acknowledge the existence of God do not realise how blinded they are. And today in our physical world there are many people of big or small statures who, having no idea whatsoever about the existence of infinite knowledge in the Universe, have quite a lot to say about the “God hoax” and what life is (in their very limited understanding). Others blame God for humanity’s failures and are even angry with God’s apparent lack of care about humanity.

These confusions prevail on Earth today, as in their exoteric teachings different faiths and churches have provided different versions and “faces” of God, some of them as long ago as 3000 year or more. In the early days, 3500 years ago, it was the easiest way to explain to people, living in those times, that God is a Father (and sometimes an angry and punishing Father). It is not sufficiently indicative today to describe God as a Father (loving or otherwise); today we need to understand that humanity is potentially a part of God’s divinity and that we have a choice to become one with God or reject this concept and become part of the recycled souls’ pool to be developed again in another Cosmic cycle in the future. This more advanced understanding of spirituality can only be available to people who are very interested in the issues discussed here, people who are free from the disease of scepticism and who commenced their spiritual ascent of chakra development.

We live in an era of dominance of the rational mind. Faced with so many unknowns (scientific, philosophical and many other) the rational mind rejects the unfathomable. This fact alone is the main reason for lack of accepting and experiencing God. God is not a person, more accurately we should think of God as our existence, as our life. And although God is everything we know in the living Universe, in this era we should try to think of God as a verb and not as a noun, just to help us shake off the limiting concept of God as a person. The major critics of the concept of God, religion and spirituality today are those people who may have their rational minds working very well, but who lack the experience and promptings of their emotional minds. A person who has only two lowest chakras working has no chance of modern understanding of the existence of God. Only further chakra development in a person can give him a chance to experience God or to have some premonition of God, leading to different conclusions than the one that God does not exist.

The development of chakras, as outlined in ‘Chakra Man’, will bring totally new life experiences to the person pursuing the quest. Not only the mind function expands as a result of the quest, but also each chakra level brings with it a new quality of mind. The opening of each higher chakra can come only through a very intense personal effort and Grace of God. The reason for this is that each chakra conveys different frequency bands of consciousness, and instead of a link between these different frequency bands, there exist, in fact, chasms. Only God’s Grace can transfer person’s consciousness over the chasm and allow it to settle in a higher chakra’s frequency band.

With each new chakra opening and starting to transmit different range of Cosmic vibrations, our mind expands to embrace a larger electromagnetic field capable of responding to those new frequency ranges. Simultaneously, new areas of the brain become activated by the mind's new electrical transmissions. In this process new areas of brain can potentially become active. We can therefore conclude that spiritual development can bring a person to an optimal usage of their brain capacity. And this is a very different situation from the initial stage of two or three active chakras and a five percent active brain capacity in a person.

We need to realise that with each higher chakra developed and working freely, the person becomes more spiritually mature and accepts more responsibility in their lives. The desired outcome of this process is the realisation that people need to work together to create a comfortable life for all, as we all are equal in a society or community. This next level of spiritual development is achieved and demonstrated when we work toward the good of our community and our civilisation as a whole.

Next level of spiritual development

According to the Cosmic knowledge that is available to us at this time, no one can progress any further in their spiritual development unless they realise the necessity and sacredness of community living, community sharing and caring for all members and not only for oneself. As a human civilisation living on the planet Earth we have a chance to progress onto a new level of personal and communal development where the community welfare will be the paramount concern of everyone. Through the personal spiritual development each member of the community can achieve a deep level of understanding of the need for peace and harmony and will be given knowledge, methods and strategies how to achieve this peace. At this new level of development, people will love each other unconditionally, as their heart chakras will be activated and working very well.

At our next level of spiritual development in a place we can call our NIRVANA, we will create peaceful communities, who will be organising their lives to aid all members in finding their personal potential and realising that potential. People will understand that a success of one person is a success of the entire community, as they will know that by working together the whole community can achieve higher levels of collective spiritual development, and again can be shifted onto another higher level of being and living, closer to God and the centre of the Universe.

None of the today's gross abuses happening in the current civilisation can be translocated into a new dimension. There will be no wars, revenge, prejudice, jealousy, power seeking, greed and all other sins and abominations we witness today in the daily life of this civilisation. The reason why these vices will not be translocated is simply this: it is a spiritual law that forbids people or souls of spiritually undeveloped people to enter regions of levels closer to Divinity. In lay terms, in the same way as oil and water do not mix, so the spiritually undeveloped people cannot mix with those who worked very hard to achieve a higher spiritual status. In our next destination, ordinary citizens will have characters comparable to our earthly saints, but these people will have other, much more interesting and challenging tasks there than to suffer from the abuses of undeveloped humanity. There is much to be done and discover in the Universe; in every area of knowledge the frontiers can be pushed further and further. And there is no more exciting news for a mature citizen of the Cosmos than this!